Description:

The Ph.D. forum is meant to help Ph.D./ Doctoral candidates specialized in Management of Technology selecting the research topic, develop the research proposals, and conducting their research.

Eight PhD students will be selected to present their research activities. Other students and faculty advisors may attend the session and benefit from the debate.

Each of the students will present his/her research activities for 15 minutes. Discussion with the scientific board, made of academicians and practitioners specialized in MOT and attendees will be conducted. The discussion will be directed toward the research topic, definition of the problem, the research methodology, and the contribution to the literature. Emphasis will be put on the expectation, the methodology and the proper conduct of the research rather than about the results of specific research. Moreover, the scientific board will identify opportunities for publication in international venues. The forum should benefit all Ph.D. and doctoral candidates from all disciplines.

IAMOT will reward the selected students by waiving of IAMOT 2014 Conference fees and a monetary compensation of $100.

PS. Students submitting abstracts are also eligible for any other IAMOT 2014 grants or awards.
